

Kadena FSS slated to host Quiddich Tournament during 'Month of Magic'

By Senior Airman Kristan Campbell
18th Wing Public Affairs

2/1/2019 — As part of the Air Force Fitness initiative, Airmen can be found virtually anywhere on base taking time to exercise. In order to shake things up for service members in pursuit of their fitness goals, the 18th Wing Force Support Squadron is hosting a "Quidditch Tournament", February 9th, at the Risner Fitness Center.

The tournament comes during 18th FSS's "Month of Magic" campaign throughout February, which will include a Nighttime Academy at the base library, Kneazle Adoption at the Karing Kennels facility and Wizards Ball at the Officer's Club. During the tournament, players will come together to learn the basics of Quidditch in a friendly competition, while taking care not to prevent any unauthorized broom takeoffs.

"Month of magic is our first campaign highlighting what we will, hopefully, make a new tradition and carry on each year," said Briana Slagle, 18th FSS account executive. "We are highlighting the Month of Magic to pay homage to the Harry Potter series, help our service members add an interesting element to their fitness routine, and get some attention to other parts of the base."

Slagle reports that players will also be sorted into their respective houses before the tournament.

"FSS facilities have gathered together to create an unforgettable glimpse into the wizard world through experiences," said Melissa Kowaluk, 18th FSS Venture Magazine editor. "There's something for everyone to enjoy."

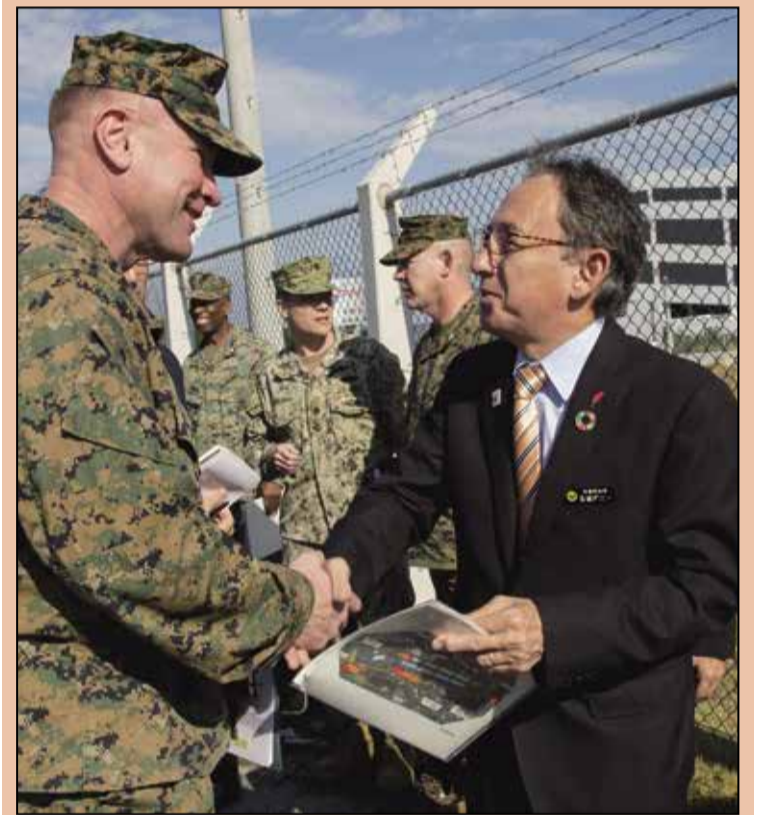

In J.K. Rowling's fictional works, Wizards receive their acceptance letter into Hogwarts at age 11. In keeping with this wizarding tradition, participants for some events, such as Nighttime Academy, are limited to age 11 or older.

"Events like this get service members from every demographic involved," Slagle said. "The entire community has a chance to come together and benefits as a whole."

Marine Corps Installations Pacific
1/31/2019 - CAMP KINSER — U.S. Marine Corps and Army officials in Okinawa hosted Prefectural Governor Denny Tamaki for his first official visits to U.S. military installations since being elected governor.

Governor Tamaki visited Camp Kinser and Torii Station to meet with US military leaders and officials from the Okinawa Defense Bureau and to receive information about efforts to consolidate and relocate US military facilities in the southern part of Okinawa as part of the bilaterally agreed-upon Okinawa Consolidation Plan.

"We were pleased to host Governor Tamaki today and to show him some of the progress being made towards Okinawa consolidation," said Brig. Gen. Christopher A. McPhillips, deputy commanding general for III Marine Expeditionary Force. "It was also an opportunity to reinforce our commitment to being good neighbors as we fulfill our Alliance commitments to Japan."

The governor received windshield tours at both installations so that he could see firsthand some of the facilities that will be shut down on Camp Kinser and relocated to Torii Station. Officials at Camp Kinser also showed the governor some of the progress already made there, including a portion of land at the Makiminato Service Area along Route 58 that was returned early to the Government of Japan on March 31, 2018.

The United States and Japan are committed to the Okinawa Consolidation Plan of April 2013, as part of an effort to reduce the U.S. military footprint on Okinawa while retaining the necessary operational capability for Japan's defense. The plan is conditions-based and outlines the exact sequencing of steps required for U.S. forces to return land and facilities in Okinawa.

Governor Tamaki thanked U.S. military leaders at Camp Kinser and Torii Station for supporting his visit and sharing information about U.S. forces in Okinawa.

2/1/2019 — Across the Air Force Airmen in the biomedical sciences corps dedicate countless hours to ensure the health and welfare of the force. To recognize their accomplishments and raise awareness for these unsung heroes the Air Force has dedicated the week of Jan. 28 through Feb. 1, as the U.S. Air Force Biomedical Sciences Corps Week.

The BSC mission is to provide allied health support to retirees, civilians, service members and their dependents.

"Our career field is a widely competitive category for officers," said Maj. Richard Caballero, 18th Medical Support Squadron

Lt. Gen. Schneider takes command of U.S. military in Japan

By Gunnery Sgt. Derek Carlson

2/5/2019 - YOKOTA AIR BASE, Japan — U.S. Air Force Lt. Gen. Kevin B. Schneider assumed command of United States Forces Japan and 5th Air Force from Lt. Gen. Jerry Martinez before a crowd of U.S. and Japanese service members, Government of Japan officials, dignitaries and community leaders during a ceremony here, Feb. 5.

U.S. Navy Adm. Phil Davidson, commander of U.S. Indo-Pacific Command presided over the U.S. Forces Japan change of command and U.S. Air Force Gen. Charles Q. Brown Jr., commander of Pacific Air Forces, presided over the 5th Air Force change of command.

Davidson recognized the two outstanding leaders and acknowledged the ironclad U.S.-Japan Alliance.

“At the heart of (the) Japan-U.S. Alliance are the amazing Soldiers, Sailors, Airmen, Marines and Coast Guardsmen,” Davidson said. “They stand ready to deter our adversaries and fight and win should deterrence fail, in order to safeguard our interests and preserve our way of life.”

Brown also expressed his gratitude and trust in both commanders as they prepared to execute the change of command.

“This is a special day for Pacific Air Forces as we transfer responsibility to lead 5th Air Force and honor two outstanding Airmen ... Airmen that I've personally known for over 20 years,” said Brown. “To be called upon to lead Airmen at this level is a humbling responsibility, and today's ceremony reminds us of the service, sacrifice, and dedication we share as Airmen serving our great nation.”

In his final address to the 54,000 men and women of U.S. Forces Japan, Martinez recollected the hard work and dedication of USFJ to enhance regional security and strengthen the U.S.-Japan Alliance through the execution of joint, multilateral exercises, and close coordination with the Japanese government. But he also left the people of Japan with a heartfelt message.

“As I leave here, I can say I'm proud to have been the commander,” said Martinez who will retire after 33 years of service. “But the thing that I'm truly proud of, and that I will tell everybody in the world is, I'm proud to have lived in the great country of Japan.”

Schneider previously served as the Chief of Staff of U.S. Indo-Pacific Command. He is a command pilot with more than 3,800 flight hours and 530 combat flight hours during operations Enduring Freedom and Iraqi Freedom.

No stranger to Japan, Schneider reflected on some of his memories as a child, when his father was stationed in Yokosuka as a naval officer.

“Some of my earliest memories as a kid were living in Japan – living in Nagai specifically, running around in local villages, seeing the local sights, traveling with my family and just being exposed to the amazing culture.”

Schneider would later return to Japan a second time as a young captain flying F-16s at Misawa Air Base and recalled his close relationships with his Japan Air Self-Defense Force partners.

Not wasting any time, Schneider addressed the importance of the U.S.-Japan Alliance, training and readiness and the evolving security challenges in the region.

“Because of the clear threats to peace and security in this region, we must maintain the highest levels of readiness to respond at a moment's notice to any threat, to any crisis, to any humanitarian disaster,” remarked Schneider. “Our Soldiers, Sailors, Airmen, Marines and Coast Guardsmen give the United States a vital forward-deployed capability that deters aggression, aids in Japan's defense, helps strengthen partnerships with other countries in the region, and enhances regional peace and security.”

For more than 60 years, the U.S.-Japan Alliance has been the cornerstone of stability and security in the Indo-Pacific and will continue to play that role in the future.

deputy commander. “We encompass a variety of Air Force specialty codes ranging from physical therapists to lab officers.”

For the U.S. Air Force the BSC consists of professionals in aerospace and operational physiologists, audiologists, bioenvironmental engineers, biomedical laboratory officers, clinical psychologists, clinical social workers, dietitians, health and medical physicists, medical entomologists, occupational therapists, optometrists, pharmacists, physical therapists, physician assistants, podiatric surgeons and public health officers.

“We catch all those gaps in the medical care that you don’t often think about from testing the water to filling your prescriptions and drawing your blood for your lab work,” added Caballero. “We’re a wide breadth of allied health professionals.”

Officers in the BSC often rely on enlisted members and technicians to help accomplish their mission.

“They are the ‘tip of the spear,’” exclaimed Maj. George Diaz, 18th Medical Group Diagnostics and Therapeutics Flight commander. “Their great attention to details and superb work ethic ensure accurate lab results, which helps in the proper diagnosis and treatment of our patients.”

Diaz also expressed great joy and a sense of accomplishment in his daily duties.

“Being able to cultivate a cadre of lab professionals, both military and civilians, who would go on to lead the future of biomedical science in the healthcare settings, research and development, and operational medicine is the best part of my job,” added Diaz.

This week is in honor of the 2,400 BSC officers and 6,800 enlisted members and civilians across the Air Force dedicated to serving our nation by keeping its war fighters in optimum health.

VP-47 conducts joint maritime patrol operations with Japan Maritime Self-Defense Forces

By Petty Officer 1st Class Kevin Flinn

Patrol Squadron 47 Public Affairs
1/31/2019 — The "Golden Swordsmen" of Patrol Squadron (VP) 47 participated with Japan Maritime Self-Defense Force's (JMSDF) Fleet Air Wing (FAW) 5 in a coordinated maritime patrol operational procedures (CMPOP) exercise, Jan. 29.

"This joint training was an exciting opportunity for VP-47 to work with the JMSDF to reinforce and to continue to build relations with our host nation's military," said Lt. Zach Alcairo, VP-47 Combat Aircrew (CAC) 9 mission commander.

The exercise further demonstrates military-to-military coordination, while enhancing relations between the U.S. Navy and the JMSDF's maritime patrol and reconnaissance communities. During the exercise, VP-47 and FAW-5 service members employed a Mk 39 expendable mobile anti-submarine training target, emphasizing CMPOP Japan turnover procedures.

"This was an incredibly smooth event," said Lt. Cmdr. Meredith Trezvis, commander, Task Group 72.2 tactics officer. "Both crews executed the briefed plan and tactics as discussed, facilitating seamless turnovers throughout the on-station period. This was an outstanding event, overall, and I hope more of our crews get the experience over the remainder of deployment."

The exercise included a P-8A Poseidon and a P-3C Orion. VP-47 is a P-8A Poseidon squadron. The P-8A Poseidon is the U.S. Navy's premier long-range, anti-submarine warfare platform. The P-3C Orion is one of the JMSDF's current maritime patrol and reconnaissance aircraft in service today.

With two dissimilar aircraft involved in prosecution on-station, VP-47 and FAW-5's successful bilateral training stressed anti-submarine and anti-surface operations.

"The event proved to be a great learning experience and demonstrated how good planning can improve interoperability and alleviate potential communication barriers," said Lt. Shane Lewis, VP-47 CAC-9 tactical coordinator. "We were very impressed with FAW-5's professionalism and proficiency on station and look forward to more opportunities like this in the future."

The "Golden Swordsmen" are currently deployed to Kadena Air Base in Okinawa, conducting maritime patrol and reconnaissance and theater outreach operations within the U.S. 7th Fleet (C7F) area of operations in support of Commander, Task Force 72, C7F, and U.S. Pacific Command objectives throughout the Indo-Pacific region.

Air Force ends promotion testing for E-7 and above

By Secretary of the Air Force Public Affairs

2/4/2019 - ARLINGTON, Va. — The Air Force announced today it is removing the Weighted Airman Promotion System testing requirement for active-duty promotions to the grades of E-7 through E-9, beginning this fall with the 2019 E-9 promotion cycle.

The memo, signed Jan. 31, 2019, removes the phase one requirement for senior non-commissioned officers to test for promotion, allowing promotion boards to identify the best qualified Airmen to promote into the senior noncommissioned officer corps.

Prior to the policy change, promotions were conducted through a two-phase process. Phase one consisted of a Promotion Fitness Exam and Specialty Knowledge Test, while phase two consisted of a central evaluation board.

“We continue to transform talent management across the force,” said Lt. Gen. Brian Kelly, Air Force deputy chief of staff for manpower, personnel and services. “This adjustment focuses on performance being the driving factor we consider when selecting our senior noncommissioned officers. It also continues our work toward increasing transparency and making our processes simple.”

The Air Force will use a promotion board process similar to the board process used by officers.

“We trust this board process will continue to give senior leaders and commanders the greatest level of confidence that the right individuals are being selected for promotion to the top enlisted ranks,” said Chief Master

Sgt. of the Air Force Kaleth O. Wright. “We found that removing the testing portion will eliminate any possibility that Airmen without the strongest leadership potential might test into promotion, while also ensuring that our strongest performers continue to earn the promotion they deserve.”

Promotion boards will continue to score records using the current scoring process as well as reviewing the last five years of evaluations and all awards and decorations. Decoration points will no longer be utilized because the board will be considering all decorations during its review and scoring records accordingly.

Additional guidance will be published in an upcoming Air Force guidance memorandum or revised Air Force instruction after the last evaluation board is completed.

1st MAW enhances capabilities during Distributed STOVL Operations

Marines with Marine Heavy Helicopter Squadron 465, 1st Marine Aircraft Wing refuel and resupply an F-35B Lightning II jet with Marine Fighter Attack Squadron 121, 1st MAW, during Distributed STOVL Operations (DSO) on Ie Shima Island, Jan. 23. The rehearsal enabled CH-53E helicopters to re-fuel and re-arm F-35B Lightning II jets from a Forward Arming and Refueling Point (FARP), significantly improving the operational flexibility, survivability, and lethality of the F-35B. The FARP provided a hot refuel and hot reload for multiple aircraft with All Up Rounds (AUR), also known as a completely assembled weapon, giving pilots the ability to stay in the fight longer, and accomplish more missions in a shorter period of time from austere locations.

1/30/2019 - CAMP HANSEN — Service members with the Japanese Ground Self-Defense Force, command sergeants major course visit the Staff Non-Commissioned Officer Academy, Jan. 30, on Camp Hansen.

The annual event was held to educate the JGSDF Command Sergeants Major Course staff about Marine Corps military education and to share common challenges senior leaders face.

“During the SNCOA visit, we were able to improve ourselves as JGSDF Senior Enlisted Leaders while exchanging ideas with the Director and the Deputy Director” said Warrant Officer Toshio Sanuki, 4th CSMC student leader, with JGSDF. “One teaching method, to make an environment in a classroom where you can speak in a relaxed way in discussion or group work was very helpful when we consider problem solving.”

Marine Corps senior enlisted and JGSDF members discussed ethics, educating leaders, and rank structure. For the first time in four years JGSDF members taught Marine Corps senior enlisted about their own military education.

This visit was the JGSDF leadership’s fourth visit to the SNCOA in Okinawa.

3rd Marine Logistics Group

2/4/2019 - CAMP HANSEN — Marines with 2nd Platoon, Bulk Fuel Company, 9th Engineer Support Battalion, 3rd Marine Logistics Group assembled fuel sites at Central Training Area, Camp Hansen, Okinawa.

The training ensured that the bulk fuel specialists remained proficient with their techniques, tactics and procedures. Staff Sgt. Bradley Hoffman, the platoon sergeant for 2nd Plt., Bulk Fuel Co., said the unit came out to the Central Training Area to further enhance their training and readiness events.

“This week we are working with 6.5 miles of hose reel so we can bring our simulated fuel inland to whatever resources are needed out there,” said Hoffman.

During the exercise, Marines used water to simulate petroleum products from a central lake where they pulled product from a notional barge. The bulk fuel specialists quickly set up modular systems in several locations widely dispersed around the CTA.

“We like picking these austere environments to challenge the Marines,” said Hoffman. “Up hills, down hills and rocky terrain, it’s not something simple like back at the warehouse.”

Bulk Fuel Co. trains in the field regularly to remain ready to support 3rd MLG and III Marine Expeditionary Force in expeditionary environments.

“We support the MEF and MLG however they need us as a ground support element,” Hoffman said. “When the mission comes down from them, we jump on the opportunity to set up in a moment’s notice.”

The Marines also patrolled lines from site to site to ensure proper liquid flow with no leaks or stoppages. If a cut or hole in the line was found, the Marines rushed to stop the leak while others provided security, working around the clock to ensure that the mission was completed despite long hours and hard labor.

“They’ve done a really great job,” Hoffman said. “They push each other, helping one other up and down the ranks, just to get the mission accomplished.”

COMBAT ENGINEERS EARN BRIDGE ERECTION BOAT LICENSES

3rd Marine Logistics Group

2/1/2019 - NAHA — Engines roared and calm blue water churned white as boats cruised under the bright Okinawa sun. Marines in groups of three piloted small green boats across the quiet industrial port, practicing elaborate patterns of turns, spins, lateral movements and sudden stops.

Combat engineers with Improved Ribbon Bridge (IRB) Platoon, Bridge Company, 9th Engineer Support Battalion, 3rd Marine Logistics Group practiced piloting bridge erection boats (BEBs) Jan. 29 at Naha Military Port. The Marines, designated as BEB operators, were tested on a series of maneuvers at the port in order to attain BEB licenses.

“We’re practicing maneuvers in the boats that allow us to move bridge bays into place during rafting and bridging operations,” said Cpl. Malon Johnson, a combat engineer with IRB Plt., Bridge Co., 9th ESB, 3rd MLG. “I’m out here working to earn my license with the rest of the Marines.”

BEBs are used to move and connect Improved Ribbon Bridge (IRB) bays, which is a tactical bridging system that can span across wet gaps, which are bodies of water, greater than 100 meters or can function as a raft to ferry vehicles and equipment across larger bodies of water.

The boat operators can use the BEBs to push individual IRB bays across bodies of water to get initial supplies and equipment to the opposite shore, then line up and connect the bays to create a sturdy bridge for units to transport across with the rest of their vehicles and equipment.

“The BEBs are highly maneuverable, highly agile and can move a significant amount of weight,” said 1st Lt. Daniel Asheim, the commanding officer of IRB Plt., Bridge Co. “As we license new BEB operators, we ensure we are mission capable by maintaining depth in our personnel readiness as well as taking the time to operationally check and maintain our gear.”

The boat operator licensing process begins with classroom instruction periods and written test, then the combat engineers move to Naha Military Port to complete the practical application portion of their testing.

“The practical application portion of the test starts with basic maneuvers, such as starting the boat and conducting preventative maintenance checks and services,” Asheim said. “From there, we move into more advanced maneuvers such as ‘crab-walking,’ which is moving the boat laterally across the water.”

According to Asheim, training the Bridge Co. combat engineers to think and react quickly provides an invaluable skill set to the unit as well as the III Marine Expeditionary Force area of operations.

“This licensing functional exercise really sets a baseline for readiness for our platoon, making sure we have licensed operators at all times,” Asheim said. It provides a mobility asset to [III Marine Expeditionary Force] and the MLG that allows us to foster logistics across a [body of water]. IRB operations and employment really benefits III MEF as a whole.”

1/30/2019 - BANGKOK, Thailand — The 38th iteration of the annual theater security cooperation event Exercise Cobra Gold 2019 is taking place February 12 to February 23, 2019 at various locations throughout the Kingdom of Thailand.

Cobra Gold is one of the largest theater security cooperation exercises in the Indo-Pacific and is an integral part of the U.S. commitment to strengthen engagement in the region.

Exercise Cobra Gold will improve the capabilities of participating nations to plan and conduct combined and joint operations; build relationships among participating nations across the region; and improve interoperability over a range of activities, including enhancing maritime security, preventing and mitigating emerging disease threats, and responding to large-scale natural disasters.

This year's exercise will consist of three primary events: a staff exercise, humanitarian civic assistance projects, and a field training exercise that includes a variety of training events to enhance interoperability and strengthen regional relationships. There will be up to 29 nations either directly participating in or observing CG19, with approximately 4500 U.S. personnel directly participating both ashore and afloat.

18th Wing Equal Opportunity

Do you face concerns of unlawful discrimination or sexual harassment? If so, Kadena Air Base leadership maintains a strict "zero-tolerance" policy pertaining to discriminatory behavior. If you feel you are being unlawfully discriminated against, to include sexual harassment, take action. We encourage members to use the chain of command first to resolve issues at the lowest level. However, you can also contact the EO office at 634-2571 to set up an appointment; or you may visit our office. Please note that the EO office will not accept a Formal Complaint more than 60 calendar days for military and 45 calendar days for civilian complaints after the alleged offense occurred without sufficient justification.

How to File a Complaint with IG

If you believe you are unable to resolve your complaint through supervisory channels, you may seek IG assistance to determine if the complaint should be filed with the IG. You can file a complaint if you reasonably believe inappropriate conduct has occurred or a violation of law, policy, procedures, or regulation has been committed. Complete the personnel data information on an AF Form 102 and briefly outline the facts and relevant information related to the issue or complaint. List the allegations of wrongdoing briefly, in general terms and provide supporting narrative detail and documents later, when interviewed by an IG person. Allegations should be written as bullets and should answer who committed the violation; what violation was committed; what law, regulation, procedures, or policy was violated; when did the violation occur. Help is available: Call your Kadena IG office at 634-7622 for Maj Sarabia, 634-1109 for SMSgt Southern, 634-2768 for Mrs. Korpinen, or leave a message on the Kadena Fraud, Waste, & Abuse (FWA) Hotline at 634-0404.

Kadena and Camp Foster Emergency Numbers

Kadena Fire Emergency Services reminds everyone to program their cell phones with the emergency numbers. To report an emergency on Kadena via cell, dial 098-934-5911, and from an office phone, dial 911. For Camp Foster via cell, dial 098-911-1911, or from an office phone, dial 911.
