REFUELING THE PACIFIC 909TH ARS

By Senior Airman Rhett Isbell

18th Wing Public Affairs
10/3/2019 - KADENA AIR BASE — The 909th Air Refueling Squadron operates day and night, always ready to support a variety of missions in the Indo-Pacific region.

As the premiere source for aerial refueling in the INDO-PACOM area of responsibility, the 909th ARS is constantly performing missions and providing support across the globe.

“The mission of the 909th ARS is to provide aerial refueling, assist in aeromedical evacuation, and transport passengers and cargo throughout the Pacific,” said Capt. Tom Griffin, 909th ARS pilot. “We’re the only active duty aerial refueling squadron in the Pacific, so we stay busy.”

Griffin and his fellow Airmen regularly support exercises and service members in a vital way.

“We participate in the majority of exercises in the INDO-PACOM area in one way or another,” said Tech. Sgt. Jason

Markham, 909th ARS boom operator. “If an exercise requires aerial refueling support, we’re going to be there.”

Along with their crucial reinforcement of so many missions and exercises, the 909th ARS also performs many real-world tasks. “Out here we’re mostly dealing with real-world missions,” Markham said. Maintaining such a high tempo requires a high level of training and confidence. This means that 909th ARS Airmen must keep their abilities sharp.

“Training for us involves Survival, Evasion, Resistance, and Escape training, aerial refueling contact training, and mission-specific training we receive once we get to our duty station,” Markham said. “Once we’re certified on tasks, we also have continuation training we have to keep up. This can range from refueling different types of aircraft, refueling in various lighting conditions and accomplishing refueling up to certain fuel quantities.”

This training is necessary due to the high potential for missions occurring at a moment’s notice. Being capable of providing this unwavering support to fellow Airmen, as well as sister services and allied countries demands a resilient mindset. It also necessitates being prepared to drop everything and fly out to support those in need.

“It’s definitely a mindset that we have to be in,” Markham said. “To be able to mentally prepare yourself for the fact that you could be called upon at any time to complete a mission.”

Developing this mindset occurs after countless hours of doing the job, but another thing also develops and grows as 909th ARS Airmen work tirelessly around the clock.

“Being a part of our mission set and the importance of it gives me a great sense of pride,” Griffin said. “Having people rely on us all throughout the Pacific and for us to consistently be able to support them is something that I’m proud to be a part of.”

AF OBSERVES NATIONAL CYBERSECURITY AWARENESS MONTH

By Tech. Sgt. Armando A. Schwier-Morales

Secretary of the Air Force Public Affairs

10/7/2019 — October is not all skeletons and jack-o-lanterns, there are also scary things that live in cyberspace. October is National Cybersecurity Awareness Month with this year’s theme, “Be Cyber Smart.”

The awareness month is a collaborative effort between the Department of Defense, along with the Department of Homeland Security and its public and private partners. It is up to the total force to stay vigilant, keep learning and be ready for any potential cyber threat.

The Air Force Office of Information Dominance and chief information officer worked to develop themes that align with the DoD weekly themes. These weekly themes are meant to assist with changing the culture of cybersecurity throughout the

The Head, Hand, and Heart of Women's Health

By Military Health System Communications Office

10/4/2019 — While healthy living is essential to all military personnel and civilians, there are some health concerns that affect women differently than men, sometimes with more life-threatening consequences. October—Women's Health Month—provides a platform to educate women on issues that affect their day-to-day lives. The Military Health System contributes by addressing health issues as they relate to women.

From the catchphrase of non-profit organizations to ancient lifestyle teachings, the concept of nurturing the "head, hand, and heart" has been referenced in popular culture, specifically when it comes to health. Nourishing these three aspects of health, and noting how symptoms in women may differ from those in men, can keep women ready and vigilant to counter health issues as they arise. Here are a few areas of health that women should take into consideration.

The Head: Managing migraines and depression

"A higher percentage of women than men suffer from migraines," said Briana Todd, clinical psychologist at the Psychological Health Center of Excellence. "Research suggests women experience them approximately two to three times more frequently."

According to Todd, many migraines in women are related to a drop in estrogen levels, particularly around a woman's menstrual cycle. Estrogen drop is just one of multiple red flags that may precede a migraine. Todd says that tracking these warning signals will help women manage future migraines and mitigate symptoms.

Another illness that affects women differently is depression, marked by a period of low mood lasting at least two weeks. Depression affects women most drastically during three stages of life: puberty, post-pregnancy, and just before menopause.

Medical professionals like Navy Cmdr. Paulette Cazares, associate director for mental health at the Naval Medical Center San Diego, urge women to view depression the same way they view other serious illnesses that require treatment. "[This] allows service members to realize the necessity of early treatment, and the ability to stay focused on career and personal goals," Cazares said.

The Hand: Protecting the body against breast cancer

Recent statistics posted by the National Cancer Institute list breast cancer as the most common cancer in the United States. While the disease exists in both men and women, women are estimated to be diagnosed nearly 100 times more often than men. Changes in the breast region like persistent pain, lumps, dimpling, irritation, and expelling of abnormal discharge are all symptoms of breast cancer. Women are advised to visit their providers if these symptoms persist.

Factors like family history cannot be changed in preventing breast cancer, but keeping fit via diet and exercise can. Women are advised to avoid unhealthy behaviors like excessive alcohol or cigarette use. Breast cancer screening is also a healthy tool to keep track of breast health and detect symptoms early. Women should talk to their providers about these screenings and materials for self-assessments of breast health.

The Heart: Preventing heart disease

Heart disease is a common health complication for both men and women, with the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention attributing it to one in every four male deaths as opposed to one in five female deaths. However, heart disease is still the leading cause of death in women in the United States.

Not every woman is symptomatic for heart disease; some fail to show warning signs until the onset of more serious episodes, such as heart attack, heart palpitations, or heart failure. Common symptoms to look for are pain in the chest, neck, jaw, throat, upper abdomen, or back.

Women can reduce their chances of getting heart disease by paying attention to blood pressure and maintaining a healthy lifestyle of a balanced diet and exercise.

Air Force:

- Week 1: Cybersecurity is everyone's responsibility
- Week 2: Defending the family – Cybersecurity practices at home
- Week 3: Privacy, PII and FOIA – Reducing mission cyber risks by protecting information
- Week 4: Phishing – Continuous training makes a difference

An already scary cyber world can be scarier when one common threat, identity theft, comes knocking, seeking a reward. However, like other threats, being cyber smart can help the Air Force family be prepared and resilient. There are eight common types of identity theft:

- Financial identity theft

- Driver's license identity theft
- Criminal identity theft
- Social security identity theft
- Medical identity theft
- Insurance identity theft
- Child identity theft
- Synthetic identity theft

The most well-known is financial identity theft, classified in one of two ways: when a thief maxes out credit, steals the victim's money or when thieves open new credit cards and loans in the victim's name.

Two more types of identity theft are driver's license and criminal identity theft. Driver's license theft is when a thief poses as the person, possibly damaging the victim's driving record. Criminal identity theft takes place when the victim's identity is used with police, resulting in a criminal record being created in the victim's name. When this occurs, the victim of criminal identity theft can have problems with law enforcement or be unable to gain employment.

Another form of identity theft involves social security numbers and benefits. Most government benefits require a social security number to obtain. Social security number thieves can falsify official documents when they have access to a victim's social security number.

Medical identity theft can be used to commit fraud involving health insurance and medical coverage. Related to medical identity theft is insurance identity theft. Thieves leave the victim with the problems after they use the victim's identity, including difficulties in settling payments, potentially higher insurance premiums and quite possibly trouble in acquiring medical coverage later on.

Even children fall victim to cyber threats and identity theft. A child's information can be used to defraud the government, create documents, commit crimes and apply for loans. Additionally, when thieves can't get a victim's complete information, they can still use parts of an identification to create a synthetic identity.

Thieves can create scary problems for potential victims and leave them with just the beginning of being cyber smart.

9/15/2019 - YOKOSUKA, Japan — Maritime forces from Japan Maritime Self Defense Force (JMSDF), Indian Navy and the U.S. Navy concluded exercise Malabar 2019 Oct. 4.

The annual, multinational, maritime training exercise included participation from P-8A Poseidon aircraft from the "Mad Foxes" of Patrol Squadron (VP) 5.

Malabar 2019, Hosted by JMSDF, featured both ashore and at-sea phases in waters around Japan. The exercise started in 1992, as an annual maritime exercise between the Indian Navy (INN) and U.S. Navy. This year's training focused on the high-end warfighting skill-sets and combined operations built on training to advance interoperability between navies.

This multi-lateral exercise allowed us the opportunity to do search and rescue, anti-submarine warfare, and overwatch counter-surveillance and reconnaissance operations, as well as test our interoperability and advance our key war-fighting skill sets," said Capt. Matthew F. Rutherford, commodore, Task Force 72. "Every year we try to advance the complexity of the exercise, emphasizing interoperability and how our tactics work together."

The objective of Malabar 2019 is to improve interoperability between Indian, Japanese and U.S. maritime forces and provide an opportunity to conduct engagement highlighting U.S. cooperation with allies and partners in the Indo-Pacific.

"This is my first Malabar Exercise, I was thoroughly impressed with the Indian Navy and the Japanese Navy, and how we were all able to work together." "Every flight worked toward a common goal and objective every time we flew together," said Naval Aircrewman (Operator) 1st Class James Rolls, assigned to the "Mad Foxes" of VP-5.

The "Mad Foxes", based out of Jacksonville, Florida, are operating out of Kadena Air Force Base in Okinawa, Japan. The detachment is conducting maritime patrol and reconnaissance as well as theater outreach operations within U.S. 7th Fleet area of operations.

"It's great to be a part of Malabar 2019 because it has been an ongoing practice in coordination, and a learning experience about how things can be done in different ways," said Lt. Mukund Narayanan, tactics officer assigned to the "Albatross" of the Indian Navy Air Squadron 312, who also participated in an SME exchange with the crew members of VP-5.

CTF 72 leads patrol, reconnaissance and surveillance forces in support of U.S. 7th Fleet, and consists of over 800 staff, ground support, and maintenance personnel operating in the region.

"The opportunity for our navies to work together reinforces the notions of freedom and stability in the Indo-Pacific region," said Capt. Rutherford.

NMCB 4 celebrated the completion of a two-room schoolhouse in Philippines

By Naval Mobile Construction Battalion 4
10/3/2019 - MALATGAO, Philippines — Seabees assigned to Naval Mobile Construction Battalion (NMCB) 4 celebrated the completion of a two-room schoolhouse alongside the Commanding Officer of Marine Battalion Landing Team 4, Executive Office of 2 NMCB, Philippine Seabees, Philippine Marines, local government officials, and teachers at Malatgao National High School, Oct. 2.

Malatgao National High School was founded in June 2016, with four small classrooms to teach 57 students from seventh to tenth grade. Attendance has steadily increased to a current enrollment of 155 students and due to the rapid growth in the student population, the school was in desperate need of additional classroom facilities. To relieve the school's overcrowding, Construction Detail Palawan was tasked to build a two-room schoolhouse that provided additional facilities needed for a safe learning environment for the students and faculty alike.

Eighteen U.S. Navy Seabees and 12 Filipino Seabees from 2NMCB began working on the new schoolhouse Aug. 1. Since then, the joint US-Philippine Seabee team worked tirelessly to provide a safe and quality classroom environment for the students in Malatgao.

"As a Crew Leader for the first time, I couldn't be happier with my crew and quality of construction we delivered here in Palawan," said Builder 2nd Class Miracle Webb. "It is my most sincere hope that we not only gave beyond expectation to the community with our construction skills but with our hearts and as people. I am certainly leaving the beautiful area of Palawan with my heart filled."

The ribbon cutting ceremony to officially open the new classrooms was a highly anticipated event for the Seabees and school officials.

"I really appreciate all the efforts these young men and women put into this school, rain or shine," said Malatgo High School Principal Mely Cabildo. "I am so grateful for this schoolhouse. My students have even been asking me when they can move their desks and chairs into the building. They can right after the ceremony."

Since their arrival in April, Construction Detail Palawan completed two schoolhouses in the Narra region. The schoolhouses provide needed facilities to ensure a quality learning environment for over 312 high school students. These civic assistance projects help local Filipino communities improve the quality of education and help Seabees further hone their construction and engineering skills.

NMCB 4 is forward deployed throughout Indo-Pacific region ready to support major combat operations, humanitarian assistance and disaster relief to provide general engineering and civil construction support to U.S. and joint operational forces.

National Anthem Courtesy Reminder

Friendly reminder, military members in uniform will render the same customs and courtesies afforded to the American national anthem to the Japanese national anthem.

Discussion: Some questions have been asked with regards to the etiquette to render customs and courtesies to the Japanese national anthem. According to AFI 34-1201, Protocol, "during the playing of national anthems of friendly nations, military members and civilians should render the same customs and courtesies as those given during the playing of the United States national anthem."

Guidance: When Retreat is played as a prelude to the national anthem at the end of the duty day, face the flag (or the music if the flag is not visible) assume the position of parade rest and upon the first note of the Japanese national anthem, assume the position of attention and (1) render a salute when in uniform or (2) place your right hand over your heart when not in uniform, or civilian personnel, until the final note of the American national anthem.

Please direct questions regarding this matter to the 18th Wing Protocol Office at DSN 634-1808 or 18wg.ccp@us.af.mil

How to File a Complaint with IG

If you believe you are unable to resolve your complaint through supervisory channels, you may seek IG assistance to determine if the complaint should be filed with the IG. You can file a complaint if you reasonably believe inappropriate conduct has occurred or a violation of law, policy, procedures, or regulation has been committed. Complete the personnel data information on an AF Form 102 and briefly outline the facts and relevant information related to the issue or complaint. List the allegations of wrongdoing briefly, in general terms and provide supporting narrative detail and documents later, when interviewed by an IG person. Allegations should be written as bullets and should answer who committed the violation; what violation was committed; what law, regulation, procedures, or policy was violated; when did the violation occur. Help is available: Call your Kadena IG office at 634-7622 for Maj Sarabia, 634-2768 for SMSgt Aguirre, or leave a message on the Kadena Fraud, Waste, & Abuse (FWA) Hotline at 634-0404.
